Mrs. Morse, (left), art teacher. Students were busy in more than half a dozen voluntary courses, or playing checkers in the lounge to juke box music. A seminar of adults and students, got too deep in discussion of hippies, privilege and responsibility, parents and kids, and Columbia University, to tear themselves away to visit the other classes. Director James Carroll commended the students and invited more adults to drop in Mondays through Thursdays, 7-10 p.m. (DeBolt)

Designers Of Center Recalled

Construction may face delay in that selection of an architectural firm to prepare plans for the new Safety Center is still in progress. In an effort to salvage some of the work already done on plans for the structure to house the police and fire departments as well as the civil defense headquarters, the building committee has conferred with Architects Design Group, Inc., of Cambridge, the firm which had the contract for the original building which was found to be too costly.

Selection of the architect will be made by Town Manager Richard J. Bowen upon the recommendation of the building committee.

The committee under the chairmanship of Ernest Hall has been meeting weekly on Monday evenings. Much of the time since town meeting has been spent on interviewing architects and conferring

J. Everett Collins Gets Founders' Nod

Those who have given long and dedicated service to the Town of Andover were honored Monday evening at the fourth annual Founders' Day program held at Andover High School.

Highlight of the evening was the announcement of the name of J. Everett Collins as the winner of the Rhoades Award as the Employee Of the Year.

A number of employees who have worked for periods from ten to 25 years were given Founders' Day pins while still other present and former committee workers were issued Certificates of Service.

Entertainment was provided by the High School A Capella choir. This group was joined by members of the Andover Male choir in a musical tribute to Mr. Collins who was a selectman for 21 years and a state representative for 14 years. His son, Roger W. Collins, is now a member of the board of selectmen.

High School Principal Philip F. Wormwood served as toastmaster for the ceremonies. The invocation was given by Rabbi Harry A. Roth and the benediction by Rev. J. Everett Bodge.

Presentation of the Rhoades award was made by Selectman Robert A. Watters who gave a brief resume of the many activities of the winner.

Awards for members of the school department were presented by Dr. Richard A. Katz, chairman, while members of the board of selectmen made the presentations to the other town employees.

Following the ceremonies, the assembly enjoyed refreshments in the school cafeteria where the exercises were held.

Awards made included the following: 25-Years: Albert Cole, Henry L. Hilton, James R. Lynch, Charles H. Murnane and George C. Williams.

Sidewalk Bazaar Planning Meeting

All Andover community organizations have been invited to attend the Andover Chamber of Commerce's Sidewalk Bazaar planning meeting to be held on Tuesday, May 14 at 8 p.m. at the Bay State Merchant's National Bank Community Room, 84 Main St.

Seward Thresher, Andover Sidewalk Bazaar chairman, has called this meeting to give all participating organizations an opportunity to become part of the planning of this annual event. The Andover Chamber invites all community groups to take part in the town-wide celebration.

Bancroft Principal Looks For New Ways

Earl E. Simon, principal-elect of the Bancroft School now under construction views his new appointment as indicating school department support for his teachers' and fellow administrators' efforts to investigate new approaches, with more emphasis on the student as an individual.

He told the TOWNSMAN he looked for the Bancroft staff to be a team of people working together, and all having a say in the development of the curriculum.

The School Committee named Simon, presently principal of the South School, as Bancroft School principal after a closed session May 2. Walter S. Perkins of Merrimac, a Swampscott elementary school principal, was elected at the same session to take over the principalship of South School from Simon, who was teacher there for four years, and principal for the last four.

Simon is 37, he and his wife, the former Joyce Mowat, live in Andover and have two children. He is a graduate of Johnson High School in North Andover, holds a bachelor's degree from Lowell State College and a master's degree in education from Salem State College. He has attended special courses at Boston University and Boston Teachers' College, as well as an extension course on the ungraded system through the University of Hartford.

Perkins 43, holds degrees from Northeastern University and Boston University and has studied at the University of Copenhagen and Salem State College. He will come to Andover July 1 with administrative experience in the continuous progress (ungraded) concept that the Andover School Committee has endorsed. Both appointments were made unanimously, after interviews, and discussions with Superintendent of Schools Edward I. Erickson and Assistant Supt. Vaughn I. Clapp.

Perkins told the TOWNSMAN Tuesday that he was looking forward to being a principal in Andover because "The people in Andover seem to have the same outlook on education, and on children

Nature Program Saturday

A mixture of fun and learning will prevail at the Andover Recreation Park this Saturday, May 11, between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. when the Andover Village Improvement Society is sponsoring a series of demonstrations and special exhibits in honor of Conservation Day in Andover. Chairman Albert Retelle, 2nd Vice-president of AVIS, reports that participation by many other conservation-minded organizations and the cooperation of Town officials have ensured a variety of exhibits with appeal to all ages. Among others, there will be a collection of young animals, depicting a New England barnyard scene, an exhibit from the Massachusetts Audubon Society, a model Boy Scout encampment, a display of mulches suitable for this area, a garden planting designed to attract birds, and an equipment display by the Town's Tree Department that I do. This community cares about children - this is evidenced in the building of the new Bancroft School. And I'm looking forward to working with Mr. Simon."

And work together they must - since both schools will operate double sessions in the South School Building next fall, pending completion of the Bancroft School. Neither man seems to view this with any alarm.

Simon said that both staff and parents realized that the decision for double sessions was governed by what would be most educationally feasible for all the children in the Andover system. He added that the liability of double sessions might prove to be an asset in some ways, giving the Bancroft staff time to become a working unit, and also giving them extra time to identify children for specific grouping of individual students in each subject area later. Some parents have already asked the new Bancroft principal about the "timetable" for starting the continuous progress program. He emphasized that the concept is not a package which begins to operate all of a sudden, but that moving into the continuous progress program is a step-by-step process for staff, and for the whole town, as well as the children, and it began for the teachers at the workshop for teachers last summer.

Simon stressed the importance of the teacher's workshop (to be expanded this summer to include other-than-Bancroft teachers). He said that the workshop already had paid dividends both in forwarding plans for the Bancroft curriculum, and in injecting ideas and techniques this year into the various schools to which teachers returned.

South School principal-elect Perkins, a proponent of in-service training programs, held principal-ships in Brookline, Danvers, and West Newbury before assuming his post at Swampscott.

WJHS Students Study Market

Andover West Junior High eight grades students were given a practical demonstration of the American economy recently.

Warren Lewis, a local resident associated with the Boston Stock Exchange, began the study by introducing students to the workings of the stock market. The students had the opportunity to inter-act and question someone whose knowledge was not only theoretical but practical.

Next, with the use of some special materials obtained from the New York Exchange, the students examined the various terms and operations of the market in depth. The students then made a paper investment of $1,000 in corporations of their own choice. On a weekly basis these are being checked to determine the profits or losses as a reflection of the economy's weekly fluctuations.

Then a visit to the Boston Exchange to observe, first hand, the operations "on the floor" and "behind the scenes" was made early in April. An opportunity to discuss the operations and to question the reasons for, and results of, particular actions were made available to the students.

The unit concludes with a visit by some students to a Lawrence firm. There the students saw the process as it actually affects an individual who chooses to invest in the capitalistic economy.

LALECHE LEAGUE

The Greater Lawrence LaLeche League will begin its Summer series on May 16, 8 p.m. in the home of Mrs. James Hayes, 160 Chestnut St.

The topic of this meeting is "Advantages of Breastfeeding to Mother and Baby".

DANCING WIRES at the EJHS Science Fair were displayed by eighth grader Spencer Aitel, one of the students honored for science projects last week. Spencer's project involved winding heavy copper wire around a paint can, and rewinding the secondary in a transformer.

Sets Wires Dancing

How about a bite of Irish moss pudding? Have you had your blood typed lately? You could have had both, seen what color cigarette smoke will turn your lungs, played tick-tack-toe with a match-box computer and lost, and learned a whole lot that you don't know, but that kids taking science have dug out, tried out and built, at the East Junior High Science Fair last week.

Parents and other visitors crowded the gym last Thursday evening to view student work in aerodynamics, electronics, biology, psychology, chemistry and astronomy. The projects at the fair were chosen for exhibit as the best of the science projects required of all seventh and eighth grade science students.

The following Science Fair exhibitors were awarded honorable mention by the EJHS Science Department for outstanding projects: SEVENTH GRADE — James Barenboian, Ted Pease, Scott Inman, Betsy Young, Nancy Anderson, Pamela Bartow, Laurie Hanby, Mark Potier, Ruthann Adamsky, Arlene Elowe, Priscilla Gordon, Elizabeth Harrison, Steven Miller, Eric Killorin, Meredith Moody, Bruce Gaynor, Nancy Rawlings and Sharon McGrath. ## Group Visits AVIS Areas

Eighteen members of the American Youth Hostel, Greater Boston Council, including Council President John B. Merz, visited Andover on Sunday, May 5, to tour several reservations of the Andover Village Improvement Society and study their natural history. Robert Perreault, a trustee of AVIS gave them a resume of Indian lore and the history of New England Indians. During a hike through the Indian Ridge Reservation, he reviewed some of the interesting geology of the region, pointing out glacial deposits, especially the Indian Ridge esker, drumlins, and the moraines behind the High School. They then visited AVIS' Vale and Shawsheen Reservations, where Mrs. Perreault pointed out the role of grasslands, wetlands, and marshes and their importance in the food chains and the interrelationships of water, soil, plants and animals. The tour finished with a visit to the Peabody Museum for an examination of Indian relics. The Youth Hostile which emphasizes bicycle touring, is finding it harder and harder to find suitable bicycle roads and has been taking to hiking as a substitute. They say their experience emphasizes the need for organizations like AVIS to buy land for conservation and recreation before all open land vanishes.

It is better to give than to lend, and it costs about the same.

This year the award will be doubled and the CO-OP is adding an equal award to be presented to an outstanding student in the Department of Culinary Arts at the "Voke" School.

She won renown for her work, exhibited and widely viewed at the Paris International Exposition some years ago.

She designed and made the table linen used on the table in the Raleigh Tavern at Williamsburg. After much research, Mrs. Reed designed a pattern typical of the Colonial period and appropriate for the restored tavern.

A woman of remarkable ability, she expresses Yankee practicality and genius in many ways, one being her invention of the Reed-Macomber loom, a folding loom on which Mrs. Reed will demonstrate her craftsmanship. Also a large exhibit of woven fabrics all designed and executed by her will be shown.

Other crafts such as pewter work and candle dipping will also be exhibited.

Delicacies to delight young and old alike will be served by hostesses in early costumes. Cookies, popular in Colonial days, sandwiches, punch and coffee will be available, plus gingerbread men and penny candy.

Tickets are available from Society officers and all members of Mrs. Ralph H. Hill's Ways and Means committee.

A Day Camp for Soccer will be conducted at Phillips Academy and Pike School in late August. The purpose of the venture is to get young people interested in soccer.

Trevor Pugh, New Zealand and English Soccer Association coach and a former player for the New Zealand team, and Bill Stevens, ex-Yale soccer captain, are sponsors of the day camp which will be held from Monday, Aug. 26 through Saturday, Aug. 31 with a daily schedule from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Both men are instructors at Pike School.

Jim Mararchev, member of the National Soccer Coaching Association, and Peter Gooding, English and Canadian professional will also be on the staff of the day camp.

Movies will be used to supplement on-field instruction, physical conditioning as well as the skills of soccer will be stressed, and each camper will be provided with his own top-grade ball.

There will be a charge for the week's camp, but the funds will go toward providing the services of the camp rather than profit. Additional information may be obtained from Bill Stevens, 4 Lovejoy Rd.

FAMILY SHOE DEPARTMENTAHS 'Oklahoma' A Smash

Some 2400 people crowded the auditorium during the three straight nights of Andover High School's sterling production of "Oklahoma", celebrating the twenty-fifth anniversary of the famous musical's debut in 1945. Like the original staging of the Rodgers and Hammerstein show, the AHS "Oklahoma" was a smash hit, with standing room only at all three performances.

Carnations were tossed into the audience, papier-mache flowers opened and the surrey with the fringe on top came rolling in, true to Director John J. Boyle's tradition of keeping the show, as well as the audience, rolling in the aisles. Oklahoma was a terrific show.

It was estimated that nearly a third of the student body was involved in the show in some way in the cast of 200, or helping with stage crew, makeup, and properties, designing the program or responsible for ticket sales. The 40-member orchestra directed by Musical Director Edward Grifoli provided full orchestration for the musical.

Director Boyle calls the "Oklahoma" the finest production in the six years he has been associated with the school. "These kids really wanted to excell. Everyone gave 200% of himself, and put his best foot forward. We started out with all amateurs but, well, take Steve Gesing. His performance as the male lead, Curly, bordered on the professional."

Probably Director Boyle's evaluations will be the most rewarding for the cast. On Nancy Mooney, the female lead, Laurie — "Wonderful expressions, a beautiful voice. Her expressions got a great response from the audience."

Ted Haykel as Will Parker — "outstanding job. Built his part expertly." Nancy Haggerty, as Aunt Ella, — "very effective in a difficult role. Tremendous." Paul Hills as the pedler, Ali Hakim, did "a tremendous job creating a very difficult part."

Linda Hughes won encores for her singing of "I Can't Say No," as Ado Annie. Boyle praised Scott Currier, for an excellent voice and for development of "Poor Jud's" characterization, and William Tarbox for his excellent portrayal of Ado Annie's father, Mr. Carnes.

Dancing was under the direction of senior Ruth Ann Stevens, who did choreography for a complete ballet scene of fifty dancers, including 10 can-can girls, The Twilight Twirlers, a high school square dancing group led by

There are so many suggestions and hints on good grooming of hair. The basic one, of course, is sparkling clean. Good grooming always starts with cleanliness. Your hair should be worn in a natural style — perhaps as you're young — long and loose hanging down your shoulders. Men usually dislike contrived and messy hair styles. No matter how elegant a style looks, if it appears to be "glued in place," he won't like it. Simplicity is the keynote of elegance and this goes for hair as well as the rest of you. Your hair will look smart and fashionable when you come to CAPITO HAIR STYLISTS, 2 Riverina Rd., Shawsheen-Andover. Tel. 475-1639. How much fun would be left in fashion if all style were standardized? This system would cut down on shopping time. But it would also cut down on your individuality.

In turn, standardization would cut down on advertising, there'd be a cutback in production. And if we worked hard to do so, we might wreck the economy.

Wouldn't we be better off to leave things the way they are? Today's advertising is already policed by the world's smartest detective . . . the American consumer.

Editorial Comment

Outstanding Citizen

A standing ovation followed the announcement Monday night that J. Everett Collins was the winner of the Rhodes Award as the Town Employee of the Year.

The award was made at the fourth annual Founders' Day observance held at the Andover High School. It was obvious that the selection of the long-time selectman and state representative was a popular one with the gathering, most of whom were town employees or members of committees serving the community.

In making the announcement and presentation, Selectman Robert O. Watters traced Mr. Collins' association with musical groups back to a time when he was eight years of age and outlined some of his accomplishments in the field over the years. Watters pointed out that the award recipient had been a state representative for 14 years and a town selectman for 21.

"After serving as a selectman for four years," Selectman Watters commented, "I don't see how he ever lasted 21 years on the job. It must have been that there weren't as many schools and town buildings to be built then, or NOT BUILT." This brought quite a response from the audience, many of them who have been associated with the planning for public buildings in Andover.

There were other awards made Monday night at the Founders' Day meeting, an event which gains in popularity each year. Long time employees stepped forward to receive their pins and bursts of applause from the gathering.

Those in attendance lingered over light refreshments following the formal program and it was obvious that everyone had a very pleasant evening.

Spare The Trees

Conservation groups and others are much concerned with a policy of the U.S. Bureau of Roads which has directed that millions of trees along American highways be cut down.

The stated objective of the policy: "To increase safety when vehicles leave the pavement, a clear recovery area, free of physical obstruction, should be provided along the roadway 30 feet or more from the edge of the traveled way in rural areas."

The Bureau's directive states that such hazardous fixed objects as trees, drainage structures, massive sign supports, utility poles and other ground-mounted obstructions should be removed. Where this is impracticable, an adequate guardrail or other type of protection should be provided.

According to information received this week, trees are already being cut down on Routes 1, 9 and 3 in Massachusetts. Work is proceeding to remove all trees four inches in diameter or larger located in the median strip and within a distance of 30 feet off the road on Route 3 from Route 128 to Tyngsboro.

The federal regulation applies to limited access roads, all federally aided roads, new construction and highways with speeds of 50 miles per hour or greater.

It seems to most with a love for natural beauty that the installation of guardrails would be far more practical than the cutting down of trees along nearly all main roads.

Protests of this program to the legislators of the district would seem to be in order. An appeal for aid might also go to Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson who has been working to make America more beautiful.

What Our Readers Say

To the Editor:

The Andover Council for the Aged is a very happy organization, with good leadership. Mr. Gordon and Mrs. Lake seem to take a special interest in the progress of the Council. The dinner, held at the Vocational High School was a main attraction, with a free bus ride to the dinner, a chance of visiting before the dinner, always a good way to make an outing a happy one, and the dinner served by the vocational students a gourmet's delight. There was entertainment - who can forget Charlie Chaplin and his laugh-provoking antics? - and a slide program on the Hearst gift to California, by Mr. and Mrs. Robert King of William St.

About 120 members of the council attended the dinner and there is room for many more. The Golden Agers have cause to be grateful to the citizens of Andover's generosity at Town Meeting, and the leadership of Mrs. Lake and Mr. Gordon, to continue to give happiness to the elder citizens.

On Purple Martins And Swallows

It's a shame that mosquitoes and purple martins are in the air at the same time for such a brief time each day.

For, if purple martins did not go to roost at sundown - about the time that mosquitoes really become air-borne - the theory that martins make great inroads on mosquitoes might be more plausible.

As it is, the bird and the insect do most of their work on different time shifts.

Unfortunately, the idea that the purple martin lives almost exclusively upon mosquitoes has become widespread in the United States. Every conservation organization in America receives numerous queries concerning purple martins each spring. The Massachusetts Audubon Society is no exception.

Quite often the query comes in the form of: "Where can I buy purple martins?" Since purple martins are wild birds protected by an international treaty, the form of the question indicates that the inquirer knows nothing about birds and merely is trying to hire relief from mosquitoes.

Friendship Pomona Grange drew a good representation from Andover: Mrs. Marion BrumEAU, Mr. and Mrs. Alex Henderson, Mrs. Bertha Pike, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Darby, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Peterson, Mrs. Marilyn Gim-mel, and Wilbur Livingston.

The truth is that purple martins seem to eat few, if any, mosquitoes. Herbert W. Kale II of the Entomological Research Center at Vero Beach, Fla., in a recent review of scientific papers on the purple martin's foods commented:

"Mosquitoes are a negligible item in the diet of purple martins."

"Behavior patterns of mosquitoes and martins are such that mosquitoes are not flying in martin feeding areas when the martins are active, and thus contact between the two is minimal during daylight hours."

Of the many things that may be blamed upon conservationists, the misleading idea that a martin is sort of an animated mosquito-vacuum-cleaner is not among them. It came not from conservationists but from constructionists - purple martin house constructionists. The purple martin house is a rather elaborate apartment house and a firm can make money selling them. The tree swallow - which is as important a predator on flying insects as the purple martin - nests in small boxes. A big corporation could hardly turn a nickel selling tree swallow boxes, thus the bird's excellent record against insects goes unheralded.

In most of New England, except for scattered districts, the purple martin is not a common bird. The tree and barn swallows, on the other hand, are quite common.

All of the swallows, and the martin belongs to the group, live either largely or exclusively on flying insects. In general, the martin captures insects larger than mosquitoes. They eat dragonflies, butterflies, moths, grasshoppers, beetles and large flies.

As one can readily see, the purple martin is a valuable bird, even without an appetite for mosquitoes. In addition, it is a beautiful bird, of strong and graceful flight. The worth-while reason to erect a purple martin house is to attract martins, not to eliminate mosquitoes.

For a free sheet telling more about purple martins and giving detailed directions on martin house construction, send a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope to: Martin Houses, Massachusetts Audubon Society, Lincoln, Mass. 01773.

N.Y. Students Visit Raytheon

Raytheon-Andover was host this month to twenty-one electrical engineering students from Brooklyn Polytechnical Institute in New York City. The visit is an annual affair sponsored by the Company for juniors and seniors at the college. Upon arrival, the students were guests at a luncheon in the Carousell Room, which was followed by brief addresses by Robert King, manager of systems engineering, and Ronald E. Guitarr, manager of industrial relations. Mr. King spoke about the role of the engineer in Raytheon's Missile Systems Division and in society. He pointed out the successes achieved by Raytheon engineers in both technological and management fields and stressed the unlimited opportunities available within Raytheon.

Mr. Guitarr briefed the students on the Raytheon-Andover operation and its relation to the world wide activities of the Raytheon Company and its subsidiaries. He cited diversification and increased emphasis on consumer products as the highlights of current and projected company growth.

At the conclusion of the addresses and luncheon, the students, four of whom had already accepted employment offers from Raytheon's Missile Systems Division, were given a guided tour of the plant and afforded the opportunity to see areas of particular interest to them.

Nature Trail Established

As part of earning their nature badge, nine junior troops of Girl Scouts from Andover and North Andover have developed a nature trail on the Shawsheen River Reservation of the Andover Village Improvement Society. Approximately 350 girls led by about 50 adults studied and identified various natural history phenomena under the guidance of botanist Mrs. Robert Perreault.

The result of their work is a self-guiding nature trail with permanent, identifying signs put up as a service project to the community by Cadet Troop 75, led by Mrs. Richard Moody. The signs were made by boys at the Greater Lawrence Regional Vocational Technical High School under the direction of Mr. John Childs. There will be 15 permanent signs identifying various flora and examples of such natural processes as erosion, the build-up of soil, effects of lightning, etc.

The trail lies along the west bank of the Shawsheen River in that part of the Reservation which is behind the Wild Rose Dairy. Like all AVIS property, it is open to the public and is accessible from Central St., just east of the Abbott (Horn) Bridge. The Trustees of the Society ask that people respect these signs and leave them undisturbed for the enjoyment of all.

JUNIOR HIGH ARTISTS Eric Lee and Brett Cook flank Eric's pencil marine seascape at Addison Gallery exhibit of recent East Junior High art work. Behind Brett is her tissue collage. If you don't know what a tissue collage is, the exhibit is open through May 13. Go and see.

Variety In Addison Show

Seventh, eighth and ninth grade artists had the pleasure of seeing their work hung in a gallery, and the fun of an exhibit opening last Friday night at the Addison Gallery of Art.

More than 150 townspeople came to the opening of an exhibit of recent art by East Junior High students, the pupils of Adelle Phillips and Sally Buono.

Time was when school art meant paint and crayon, or drawings in pen, pencil and charcoal - and that's all. Nowadays, this exhibit attests, art students in the Andover schools experiment as well with wire sculpture, collages, papier mache, and toothpick sculpture and various other media. Gallery officials called the junior high students' work delightful.

The exhibit will continue through May 13 in the two rooms to the left, as one enters the Addison Gallery, located off Chapel Ave. on the Phillips Academy grounds.

Gallery hours are from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily, and from 2 to 5 p.m. on Sunday. The public is invited to view this exhibit, and the gallery's other exhibits and permanent collection, at no charge.

Chamber Has Yearly Meeting

Close to 600 were in attendance Tuesday evening at the SHERATON Rolling Green Motor Inn here for the annual dinner of the Greater Lawrence Chamber of Commerce of which the Andover chamber is a division.

Speaker was Secretary Robert C. Weaver, Housing and Urban Development director. In his discourse on urban development he emphasized that it is "nation-wide" and effects every community.

In connection with urban renewal, Mayor Daniel P. Kiley of Lawrence displayed drawings of an all-weather mall area which is to be started this summer in the neighboring city.

Bucky Dover no doubt has an answer to that question, but most likely, at his age, it will be subject to change.

But his Dad, knows that someday Bucky will "set his course" and that the success of his chosen career may well depend upon going beyond a high school education.

A worthwhile savings objective? Larry Dover thinks so! And, Bucky's college fund savings account here at Andover Savings Bank proves it.

Radcliffe Club*Meeting At Inn

The Radcliffe Club of the Merrimack Valley will hold its annual spring luncheon on Saturday, May 11, at the Andover Inn. Miss Elizabeth M. Thomas of Andover, will preside at the 12:30 p.m. luncheon, and introduce the speaker, former Senator Maurine Neuberger, now head of Radcliffe's South House.

Former Sen. Neuberger assumed the lead in the Senate in truth-in-packaging and truth-in-labelling legislation, and spurred President John Kennedy into incorporating consumer legislation in his State of the Union message.

"The voice of the consumer will be heard, and the public looks to a woman to hear it," she says in justification of the efforts that led colleagues to call her "Mrs. Consumer."

She has not let her interest die since leaving the Senate. As consultant to the Food and Drug Administration, she has influence in preventing frauds, and ensuring purity in consumer goods.

Mrs. Peter B. Olney Jr., Mrs. Francis B. McCarthy, Mrs. Carleton Kimball, Mrs. Albert S. Rothseid, Mrs. Domenic S. Terranova and Mrs. Robert S. Zollner, all of Andover, have been working towards the success of the meeting.

Kerner Report Draws Interest

The first of a series of weekly study meetings on the Kerner Report on civil disorders brought more than 75 people to the Library on Tuesday evening. Town Manager Richard A. Bowen initiated the discussion series with a view to determining what role Andover can play towards solution of problems outlined in the report. The churches in North Andover are sponsoring a similar discussion series in their community.

The next Kerner Report meeting on Tuesday at 7:30 p.m., will focus on study of the first three chapters of the report, now a nationwide bestseller. Bowen said he hoped the group could secure speakers from time to time, to round out information in the report. Interested persons are invited to attend.

Ground Breaking

Ground breaking ceremonies for the new Gillette Safety Razor Co. building in the Industrial Park have tentatively been scheduled for May 22.

Municipal officials from the Greater Lawrence community will join Gov. John A. Volpe and other dignitaries on the occasion.
